What do you value?
After students write for two minutes, listing everything they can think of that they value, these questions guide discussion:

Why are you here?
• Why are you at Furman? In science? In physics?
• What do you value in your education?
• What do you value in your life?

Education is a community enterprise
• One goal for our course is that our class becomes a supportive learning community.
• It matters what values are shared by the community.

Some values for our educational community
• Integrity -- meaning honesty, trust, respect, fairness, responsibility
• Collaboration
• Hard work
• Friendship and humor
• And many others important to us individually and collectively
